

Important Notification to all economical operators interested to participate to tendering procedures of the European Defence Agency:

In line with the commitment to increase further transparency and equal treatment in procurement procedures and to facilitate access to documentation related to calls for tenders, after a testing phase, EDA makes now use of the eTendering platform.

More information about the platform can be found under the link: <https://etendering.ted.europa.eu/general/page.html?name=home>

Consequently, the full documentation (technical specifications, contractual documentation, annexes, answers to question raised by economical operators) of each call for tender published by EDA is available through the electronic link under Section I.1- Electronic access to information of the Contract Notice published in the EU Official Journal.

Whilst tendering documents are freely accessible without registration, please note that in order to use some of the options available on the eTendering platform, users will need to log in. Once logged in, users have the option to `subscribe` to a call for tender following what they will automatically receive notifications for any updates of the tendering documentation/publication of new documents. Moreover, this will allow users to post questions related to the call for tenders.

For additional dissemination purposes only, each EDA call for tender published in the EU Official Journal will be listed in the EDA website - "EDA Procurement" with the electronic link to the eTendering platform. Nevertheless, economic operators shall always refer to the EU Official Journal as legal reference.
